Rachel Jordan

I have always considered myself a perspective prospector.

Copywriter at Supremo Media and MA Publishing student at the University of the Arts London. All project text in this portfolio is my own writing, drawn from my MA assessments and project materials.

About me 02

Blogs for Apex Recovery 03

Ink, Paper, Power 04

The Elementals: Find Your Element 07

Embodied and Decolonising the Archive 08

Inferno: two prototypes 09

Research, proposals, working with AI and contact 10

racheljordancw@gmail.com linkedin.com/in/rachel-jordan-b923b5100 London · Eligible to work in the UK

About me

I intend to discover conceptual gems by mining through the minds to the farthest reaches of humanity. I wish to help unheard voices grow louder.

Every perspective deserves to be heard and contemplated despite differences of opinion. My writing style is rooted in a desire to understand the intricate aspects of human consciousness. In my current role as a Copywriter at Supremo Media, I translate this into SEO-driven content that connects with readers experiencing the hardships of addiction while supporting organic growth.

My desire to seek and deeply understand other ways of thought formed through the three years I spent as a Special Education Teacher, a role that required me to navigate differently programmed brains and build trust through discernment and adaptability in my communication. Working with kids gives you a look into the uninhibited impulses of humanity, and into what it means to relate to others while your perspective is still forming. My students saw the world in ways I could never have reached on my own.

I've learned that the most beneficial technique I can employ for myself is building rapport and making small connections with as many people as I can. I'm lucky enough to have strong interpersonal communication skills, so further developing them will offer me the greatest opportunity to succeed professionally.

EXPERIENCE AND EDUCATION

Supremo Media, London · Copywriter — Oct 2025 – present
Write SEO-driven blogs, briefs and FAQ content, drafting with AI, then rewriting and verifying. Selected bylined posts for Apex Recovery (page 03).

University of the Arts London · MA Publishing — Sept 2025 – present
Publishing strategy, audience growth and engagement, community building, content development, project management and book production.

Nanny · two children — July 2023 – Aug 2025
Looked after two young children, from birth for the younger, running daily routines and keeping the parents informed and reassured.

The Dunham School, Baton Rouge · Special Education Teacher — Aug 2020 – May 2023
Managed complex interpersonal dynamics and adapted communication to the needs of each individual student, building trust with students and families.

Anthropologie, Baton Rouge · Sales Associate — Sept 2021 – Oct 2023
First point of contact for customers, identifying their needs and recommending tailored options that contributed to team sales targets.

Louisiana State University · BA Creative Writing — 2014 – 2020
Editorial practice, research and critical analysis, audience-focused writing and narrative development.

SKILLS

- Outreach and relationship management
- Audience growth and engagement
- Content strategy and SEO
- Digital marketing and analytics (Google Analytics, Search Console)
- Project and pipeline management
- Community building
- Strategic communication
- Event promotion and coordination

PUBLISHED COPYWRITING · SUPREMO MEDIA

Blogs for Apex Recovery

SEO-driven content considers what people want and pairs it with the words they actually use to ask for it. My role at Supremo Media has allowed me to translate my ability to understand others into content that connects the realities and hardships of addiction with an action plan for recovery, all while supporting organic growth.

I wrote these posts for our client Apex Recovery, an addiction treatment provider in Tennessee, drafting with AI and then rewriting and verifying each one before it was published under my name. This is a selection, and everything else is on my author page at apex.rehab/author/rachel.

8
posts featured here

~15,900
words across these eight

15 Sep 2026 · ~2,100 words

Multiple Pathways to Recovery: Finding the One That Fits

> Sometimes there's a deep seated fear that your chance to recover has been missed. Like you had your shot and wasted it.

apex.rehab/recovery-awareness-month

29 Jun 2026 · ~1,800 words

Freedom, Independence, and the Pressure to Participate this Fourth of July

> There's a push and pull that's totally normal. You're not broken for feeling it, and you're not alone in it.

apex.rehab/fourth-of-july

23 Jun 2026 · ~2,200 words

Relapse Prevention: Coping Skills and Warning Signs

> Strong relapse prevention skills aren't something that appear by accident.

apex.rehab/relapse-prevention-coping-skills-warning-signs

23 Jun 2026 · ~1,800 words

What Are The Signs For Drug Relapse?

> Relapses can happen to anyone, even if they've shown incredible dedication to their recovery.

apex.rehab/relapse-on-drugs-top-warning-signs-and-triggers

23 Jun 2026 · ~2,800 words

Overcoming Xanax Addiction

> Many individuals aren't sure where to start with Xanax addiction treatment.

apex.rehab/overcoming-xanax-addiction

4 Mar 2026 · ~2,000 words

St. Patrick's Day And Alcohol Use: A Time For Awareness And Support

> One part of you wants to celebrate like you used to and another clinging on to the course of your recovery.

apex.rehab/st-patricks-day-and-alcohol-use

27 Dec 2025 · ~1,600 words

New Year, New Chapter: Moving Forward in Recovery

> A calendar flipping to a new year will not suddenly cause a dramatic shift in your life.

apex.rehab/new-year-recovery

19 Nov 2025 · ~1,600 words

Finding Gratitude in Recovery: A Thanksgiving Message for Those Healing from Addiction

> You lean on each other, focus on the moments that keep you going, recognize the small things that held you together for just one day.

apex.rehab/thanksgiving-message-for-those-healing-from-addiction

LEAD CASE STUDY · MARKETING SCHEDULER, THEN MARKETING HEAD

Ink, Paper, Power

Free student-led online conference, 23 April 2026.
Instagram, LinkedIn, Reddit, newsletters and print.

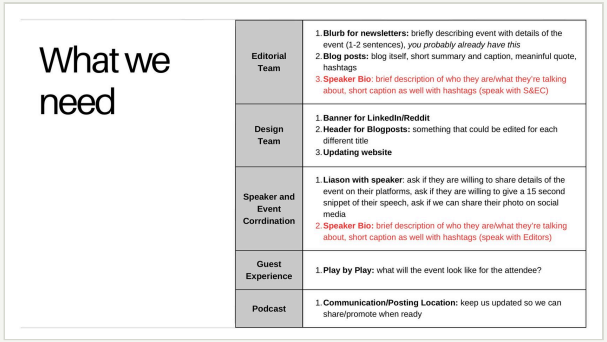

Ink, Paper, Power was our MA class's free online conference on how independent presses operate within a homogenized industry. I was assigned as marketing scheduler, and when our department was left without a lead about a month in, I stepped up to run the campaign.

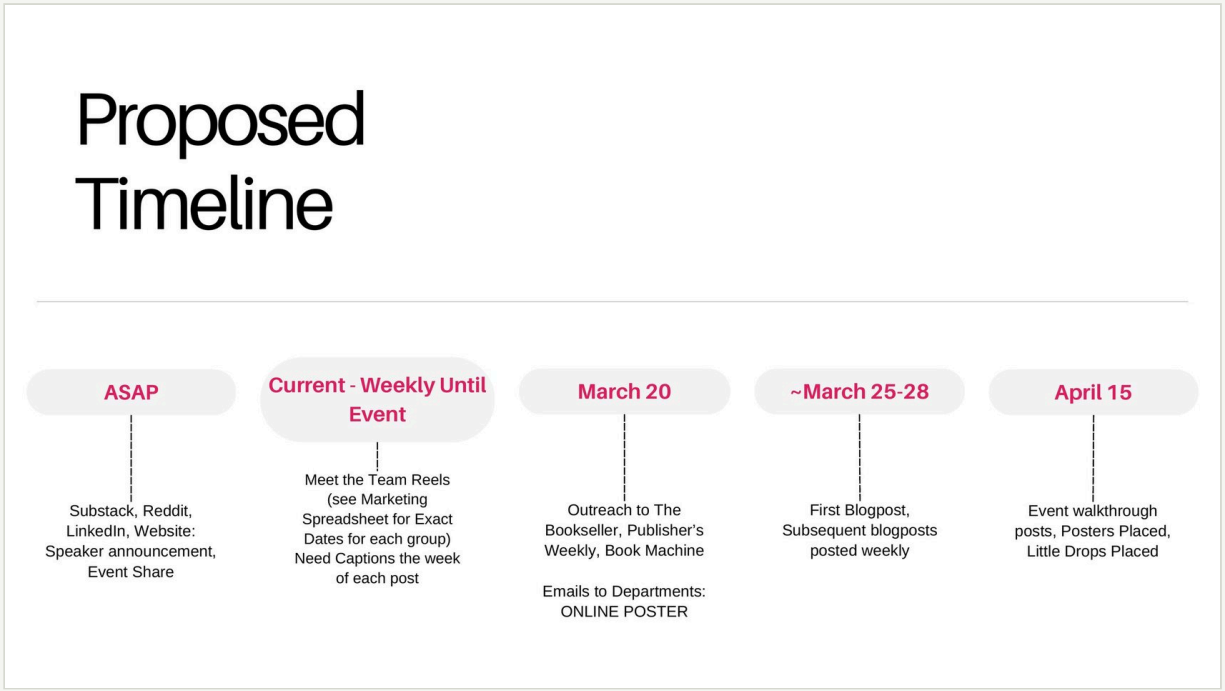

WHAT I DID

- Wrote the campaign proposal, built around a clear audience and a schedule of specific, time-bound goals for each department.
- Wrote a brief for each team, from newsletter blurbs to a 15 second speaker snippet.
- Worked with our speaker team to ask each speaker to share a snippet of their talk and post about the event on their own platforms.
- Planned outreach to The Bookseller, Publishers Weekly, BookMachine and the Society of Young Publishers.

Event website publishinginnovation2026.myblog.arts.ac.uk
Eventbrite eventbrite.co.uk/e/ink-paper-power-tickets-1984635080952
Instagram instagram.com/mapublishing
LinkedIn linkedin.com/in/ual-ma-publishing-19a615352

The campaign proposal I created and presented; the brief for each team, from newsletter blurbs to a 15 second speaker snippet; and the proposed timeline, from press outreach to the final week of posters.

How it worked

Meet the team reels

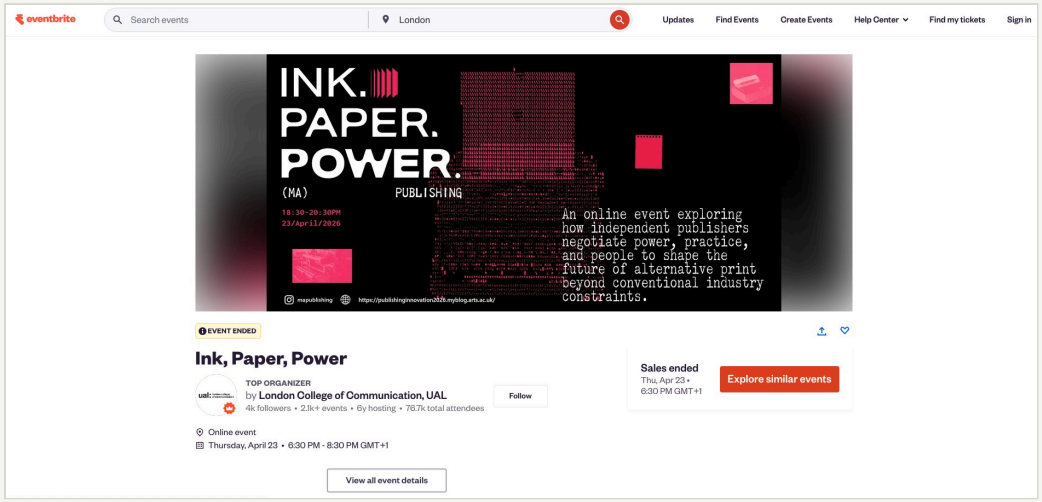

We wanted the content to be human forward, so the campaign led with meet the team reels on Instagram. Instagram finished with 39,350 views and 8,527 accounts reached.

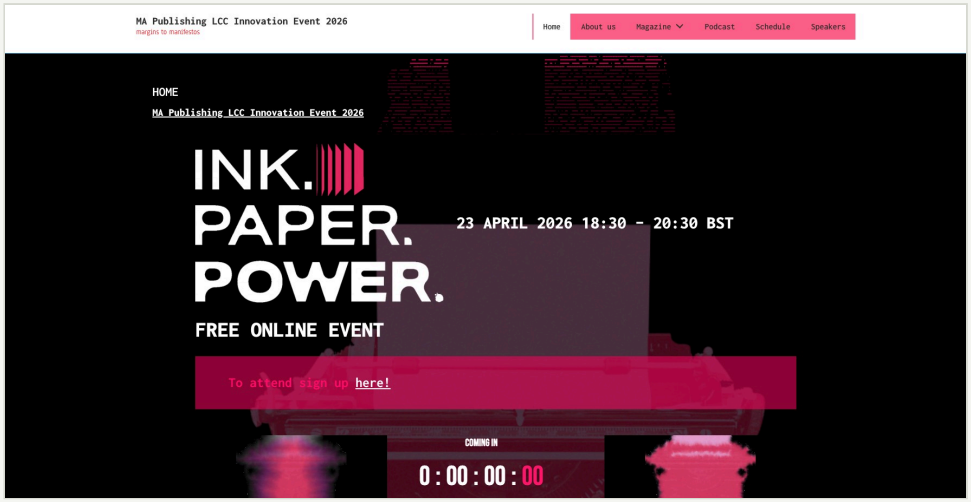

Reddit

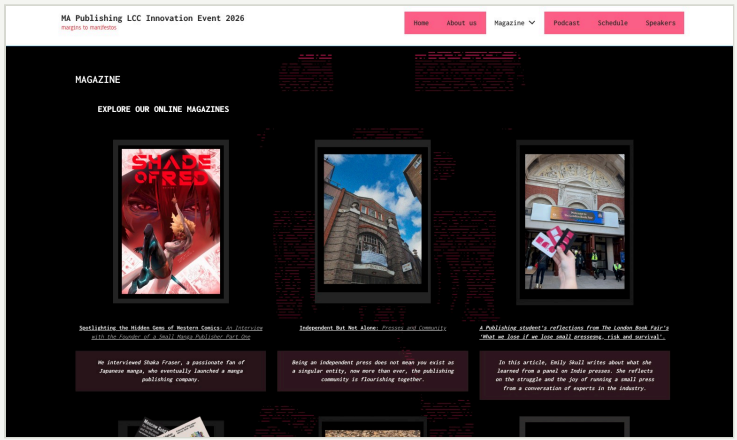

We were banned from reddit within an hour, so I posted from my personal account instead. That r/publishing post reached around 4,000 views.

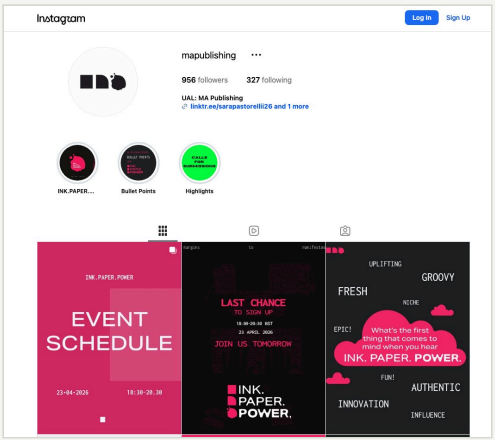

Newsletters and teams

My classmate's outreach landed a listing in BookMachine's newsletter. When no one took charge of meeting the schedule, I acted as liaison between our department, design and the editors to keep it on track.

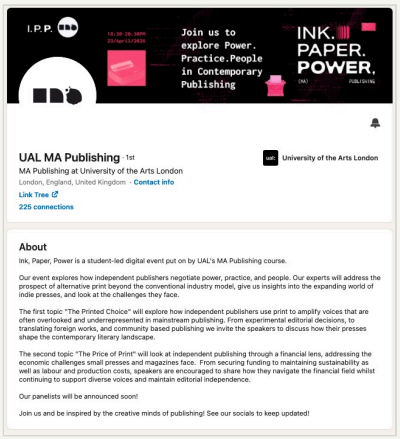

The Eventbrite page and the event website; the website's online magazine; the MA Publishing Instagram, with our meet the team reels; and the LinkedIn page during the campaign.

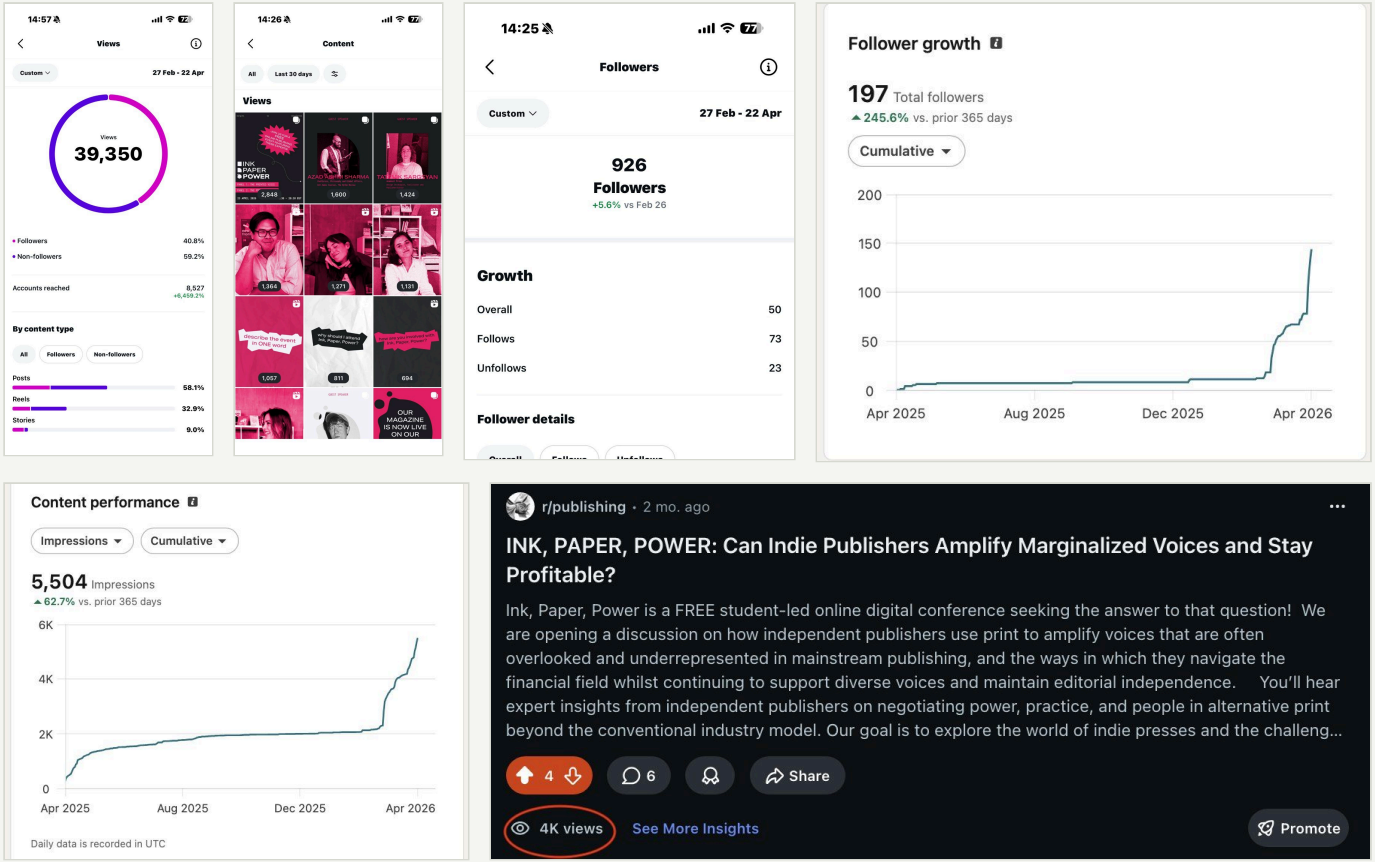

161
sign ups on Eventbrite against a goal of 200, more than previous groups

39,350
Instagram views and 8,527 accounts reached, 27 Feb to 22 Apr

+245.6%
LinkedIn followers on the previous year, now 197

~4,000
views on one r/publishing post

At the end of the campaign, our Social Media Manager and I reviewed the metrics on every platform to see what had actually worked. Instagram and LinkedIn both saw a major increase in followers and connections.

Instagram views, views by post and followers; LinkedIn followers and impressions; and the r/publishing post.

CAMPAIGN PROPOSAL · MA COURSEWORK · JANUARY 2026

The Elementals: Find Your Element

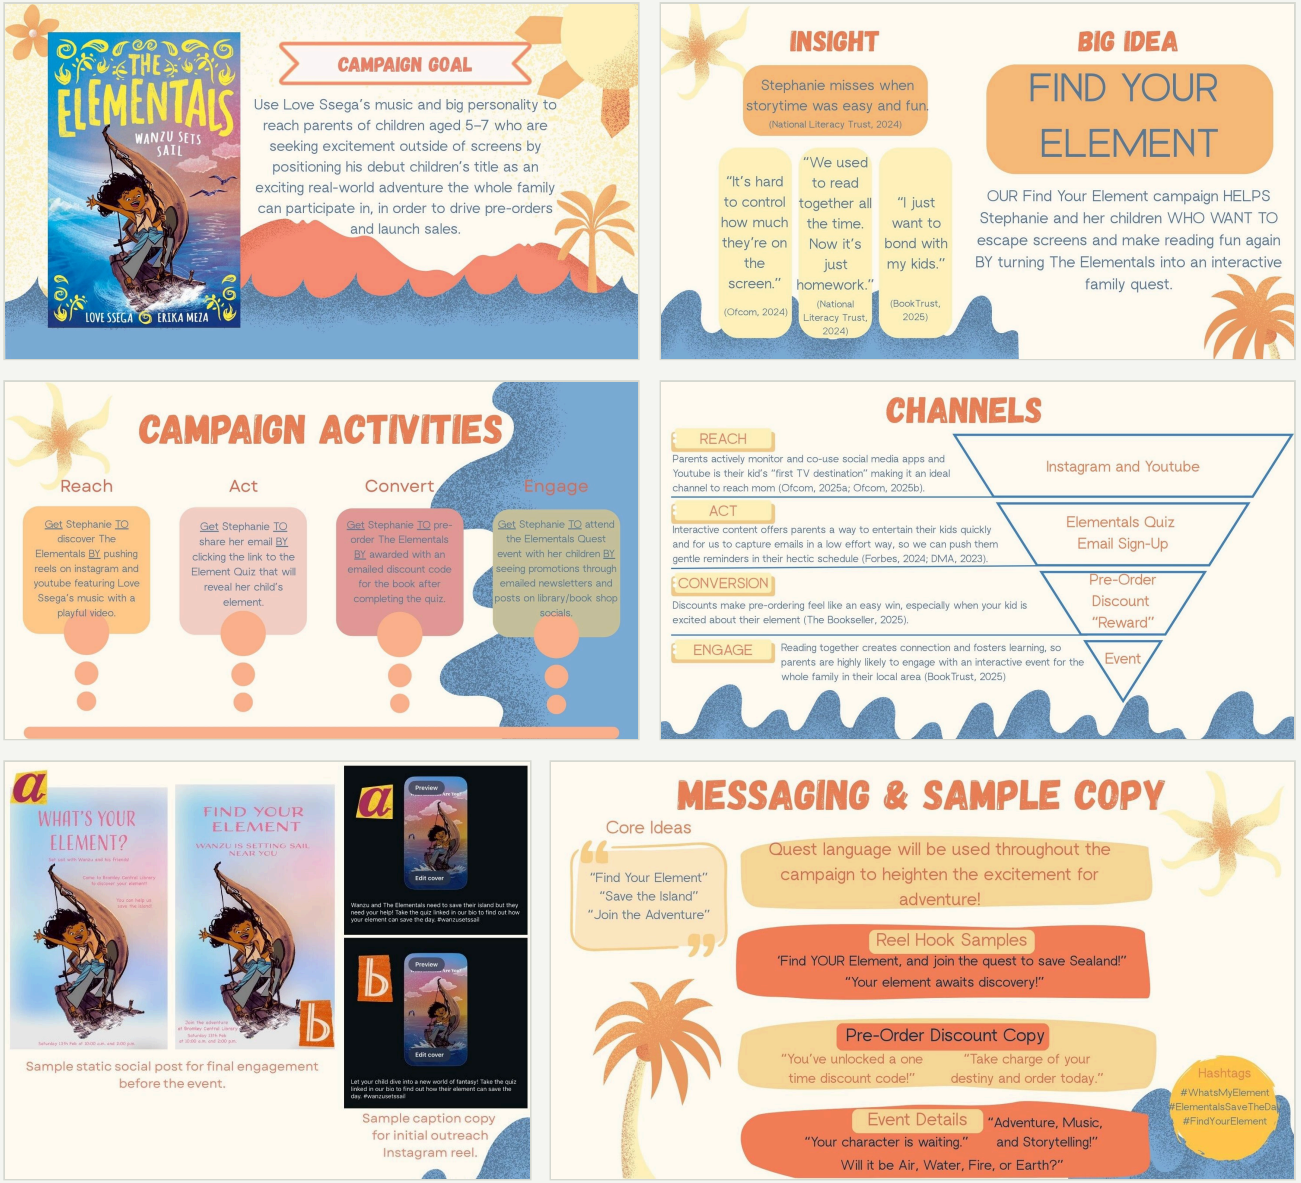

Launch campaign for Love Ssega's debut children's book, Wanzu Sets Sail. Audience: parents of children aged 5 to 7.

Our goal is to give parents and kids 5-7 a wondrous experience. What better way than a family event and a new world of fantasy?

First we capture Stephanie's attention on Instagram and YouTube through Reels and Shorts. A link in the caption leads her to our interactive Element Quiz, leading her to share her email to receive "Quest Reward Code", and learn about our in-person event. Emailed newsletters and more posts on library or bookshop social channels will gently remind her by breaking through the mental chaos of parenting subtly.

Using quest language makes the whole experience more exciting calling them to Find their Element, Save the Island, and Join the adventure.

> A proposal for my MA, not a live campaign.

Campaign goal; insight and big idea; activities from reach to engage; channels; A/B sample content; messaging and sample copy. The Elementals: Wanzu Sets Sail by Love Ssega, illustrated by Erika Meza.

PROJECT MANAGER · ART BOOK

Embodied

Embodied is a hardcover, clothbound art book on how sculpture has represented the female figure, made by an MA Publishing group at the University of the Arts London. As project manager, I took it from concept to a printed run of six copies.

I scheduled and coordinated the editing, design and binding roles. Contributors came in through my cold emails and an open call, and I kept their records and consent forms.

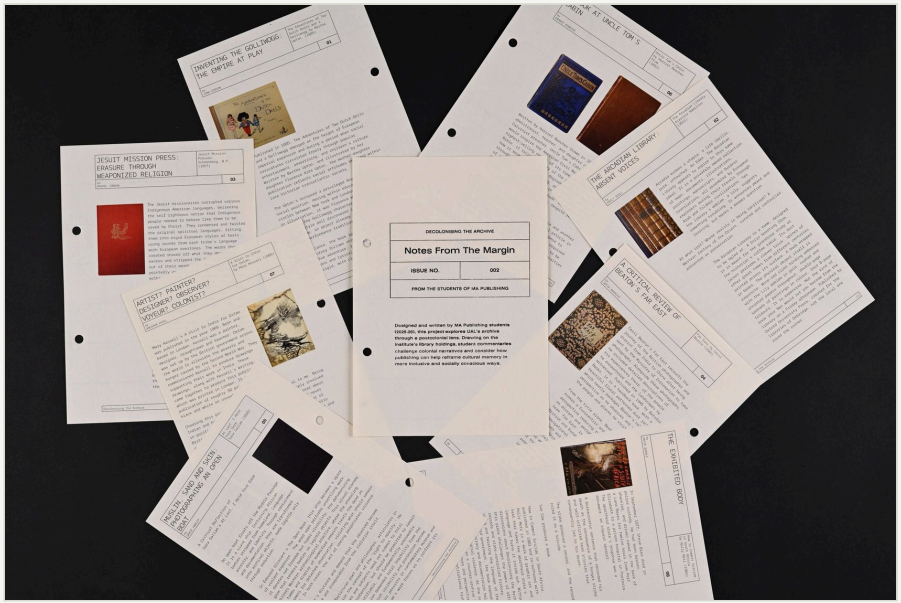

Clothbound exterior in rust and in blue with images pasted in a debossed space; tipped-in inserts of commentaries from contributors. Initial print run of six copies.

PROJECT MANAGER AND CONTRIBUTING AUTHOR · ZINE

Decolonising the Archive

A ring-bound zine designed and written by MA Publishing students (2025-26), exploring UAL's archive through a postcolonial lens. As project manager, I created the project timeline and coordinated communication between group members to meet our targets.

I also wrote one of the student commentaries, on the Jesuit Mission Press. The finished zine was printed as Notes From The Margin, Issue 002.

Notes From The Margin, Issue 002.

DESIGNER · MA CONTENT UNIT

Inferno: two prototypes

Prototype 1, Inferno Anatomy, is a collectible deck of cards for tourists and museum goers who want a unique aesthetic memento of the Inferno. Prototype 2 is a new modern dual translation for college age collectors who enjoy poetry and want an eye-catching book that's easy to carry around and use for class.

> My undergraduate study of Dante's Inferno at Louisiana State University was the inspiration for this MA project.

I learned to manipulate images in Photoshop to design both prototypes, and took each one to the ready for print stage to the specs below. Neither was printed.

CARD DECK	11.1 × 15.5 cm, 27 cards front and back, GF Smith White Frost 350gsm, tied with a red ribbon
BOOK	150 × 188mm, 208 pages, perfect bound and section stitched, Munken Print White 20, 90gsm

Cover design for the dual translation, and Inferno Anatomy: the cover card, then the backs and faces of Lust and Greed.

Research, proposals and networking

Graduate research paper · UAL · December 2025

The Webtoon: a master of IP jumping from platforms into multiple media formats

Platform metrics from fan participation produce verified content and limit producers' risk when deciding acquisitions. In the future, publishing may rely on digital sources for IP because of the vast opportunities platforms provide, but may face challenges with algorithms controlling visibility and limiting diversity.

Audience report · UAL · November 2025

Consumers know what's best for the Poetry Foundation

Poetry deserves a platform with global reach, and by developing a consumer insight department, we can uncover gaps in our engagement and develop new strategies to connect with a broader and more diverse readership.

Graduate research review · UAL · October 2025

Can Bookstagrammers make a book more recognizable?

A review of a study on a Romanian Bookstagram tour. Their research explores how the world of publishing overlaps with the business side of digital marketing. Though the research is limited to a smaller sample, the concept and execution convincingly demonstrate the rising role social media marketing has in the publishing industry.

Book proposal · Usborne

Creating Without Plastic

An educational craft focused companion activity book. The book will condense tested and researched information into language accessible to kids, so they can build healthy habits for taking care of earth early!

Innovation proposal · UAL · April 2026

Entomology in Sport

Imagine Mary M. Ward's cheerfully whimsical book Entomology in Sport brought to life as an educational digital reimagination. A Read-to-Me book with a subtly animated, gently narrated video book as a companion, for Ladybird on the Epic! platform.

London Book Fair · dissertation on Libraro

How a coffee line changed my dissertation

Funnily enough the man I was speaking to is CEO of a company called Libraro that encodes IP using blockchain technology. He bought me a diet coke and we ended up speaking for thirty minutes or so about his company and my research.

WORKING WITH AI

Where I Stand: Do not go gentle into that good LLM

AI could make us lazy or it could put a new drive within us to prove ourselves capable of harnessing its power for our benefit rather than being overshadowed and left behind. I'm willing to adapt and learn to work with these tools because in the end we know they are far too convenient to be going away anytime soon.

Read the full piece at rachelthinksthat.github.io/about.html#ai

Let's talk

rachelthinksthat.github.io racheljordancw@gmail.com
linkedin.com/in/rachel-jordan-b923b5100