

Rachel Jordan

I have always considered myself a perspective prospector. I prefer to seek out possibilities rather than wait for them to find me.

Copywriter at Supremo Media and MA Publishing student at the University of the Arts London. All project text in this portfolio is my own writing, drawn from my MA assessments and project materials.

About me	02
Blogs for Apex Recovery	03
Ink, Paper, Power	04
The Elementals: Find Your Element	07
Embodied and Decolonising the Archive	08
Inferno: two prototypes	09
Research, proposals, working with AI and contact	10

About me

I intend to discover conceptual gems by mining through the minds to the farthest reaches of humanity. I wish to help unheard voices grow louder.

Every perspective deserves to be heard and contemplated despite differences of opinion. My writing style is rooted in a desire to understand the intricate aspects of human consciousness. In my current role as a Copywriter at Supremo Media, I translate this into SEO-driven content that connects with readers experiencing the hardships of addiction while driving organic growth.

This followed three years as a Special Education Teacher, a role that required me to navigate differently programmed brains and build trust through clear, adaptive communication. Working with kids, let alone kids with special needs, gives you a unique ability to see outside of yourself and peer back into humanity in its rawest form.

I've learned that the most beneficial technique I can employ for myself is building rapport and making small connections with as many people as I can. I'm lucky enough to have strong interpersonal communication skills, so further developing them will offer me the greatest opportunity to succeed professionally.

EXPERIENCE AND EDUCATION

Supremo Media, London · Copywriter	Oct 2025 – present
Write SEO-driven blogs, content briefs and FAQ content, using SEMrush, Google Analytics and Search Console. Eight bylined posts for Apex Recovery (page 03).
University of the Arts London · MA Publishing	Sept 2025 – present
Nanny · two children	July 2023 – Aug 2025
The Dunham School, Baton Rouge · Special Education Teacher	Aug 2020 – May 2023
Anthropologie, Baton Rouge · Sales Associate	Sept 2020 – Oct 2023
Louisiana State University · BA Creative Writing	2014 – 2020

SKILLS

- Outreach and relationship management
- Audience growth and engagement
- Content strategy and SEO
- Digital marketing and analytics (Google Analytics, Search Console)
- Project and pipeline management
- Community building
- Strategic communication
- Event promotion and coordination

PUBLISHED COPYWRITING · SUPREMO MEDIA

Blogs for Apex Recovery

My writing style is rooted in a desire to understand the intricate aspects of human consciousness. In my current role as a Copywriter at Supremo Media, I translate this into SEO-driven content that connects with readers experiencing the hardships of addiction while driving organic growth.

These posts were written for Apex Recovery, an addiction treatment provider in Tennessee, and each one is published under my name.

8 bylined posts	~15,900 words in total
---------------------------------------	--

15 Sep 2026 · ~2,100 words

Multiple Pathways to Recovery: Finding the One That Fits

Sometimes there’s a deep seated fear that your chance to recover has been missed. Like you had your shot and wasted it.

apex.rehab/recovery-awareness-month

23 Jun 2026 · ~2,800 words

Overcoming Xanax Addiction

Many individuals aren’t sure where to start with Xanax addiction treatment.

apex.rehab/overcoming-xanax-addiction

29 Jun 2026 · ~1,800 words

Freedom, Independence, and the Pressure to Participate this Fourth of July

There’s a push and pull that’s totally normal. You’re not broken for feeling it, and you’re not alone in it.

apex.rehab/fourth-of-july

4 Mar 2026 · ~2,000 words

St. Patrick’s Day And Alcohol Use: A Time For Awareness And Support

One part of you wants to celebrate like you used to and another clinging on to the course of your recovery.

apex.rehab/st-patricks-day-and-alcohol-use

23 Jun 2026 · ~2,200 words

Relapse Prevention: Coping Skills and Warning Signs

Strong relapse prevention skills aren’t something that appear by accident.

apex.rehab/relapse-prevention-coping-skills-warning-signs

27 Dec 2025 · ~1,600 words

New Year, New Chapter: Moving Forward in Recovery

A calendar flipping to a new year will not suddenly cause a dramatic shift in your life.

apex.rehab/new-year-recovery

23 Jun 2026 · ~1,800 words

What Are The Signs For Drug Relapse?

Relapses can happen to anyone, even if they’ve shown incredible dedication to their recovery.

apex.rehab/relapse-on-drugs-top-warning-signs-and-triggers

19 Nov 2025 · ~1,600 words

Finding Gratitude in Recovery: A Thanksgiving Message for Those Healing from Addiction

You lean on each other, focus on the moments that keep you going, recognize the small things that held you together for just one day.

apex.rehab/thanksgiving-message-for-those-healing-from-addiction

LEAD CASE STUDY · MARKETING SCHEDULER, THEN MARKETING HEAD

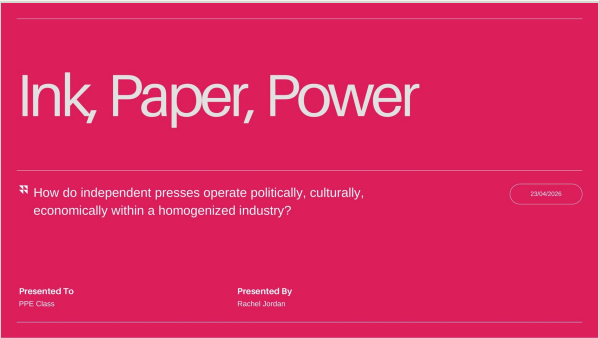

Ink, Paper, Power

Free student-led online conference, 23 April 2026.
Instagram, LinkedIn, Reddit, newsletters and print.

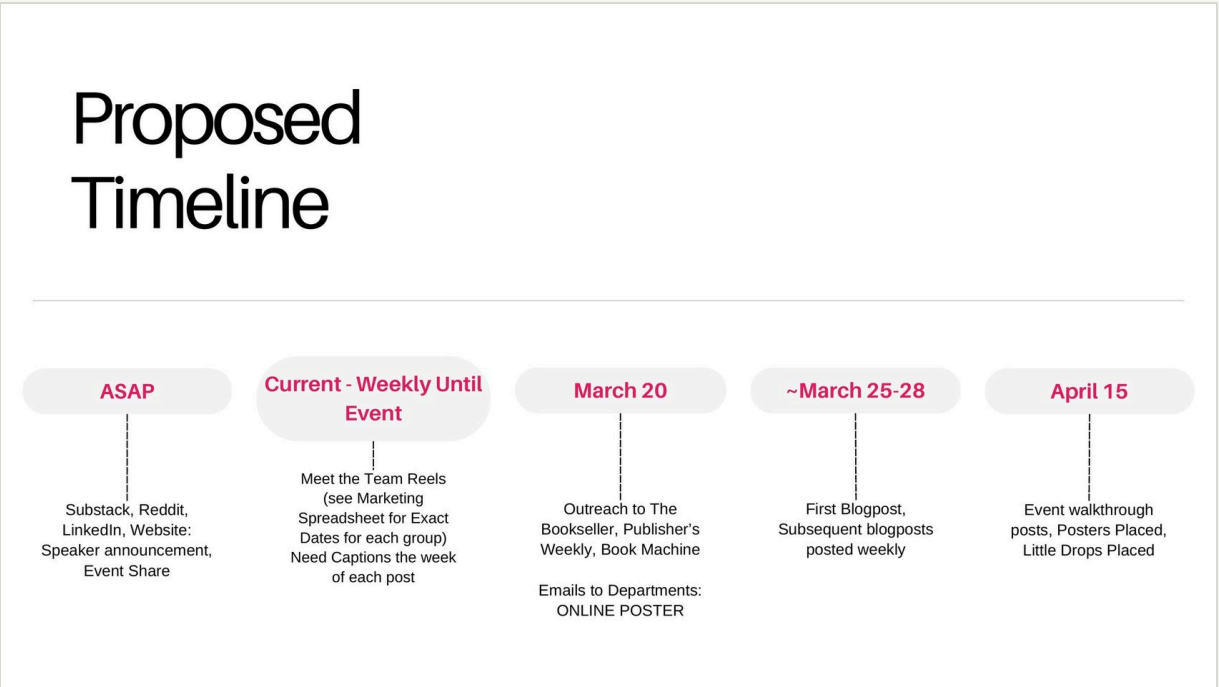

Marketing was not my first choice of department for our digital event, so I was pretty bummed when I was assigned to it instead of the podcast team. Even though I was reluctant I set my mind on doing the best job I could, and even shocked our tutor by announcing we'd be getting 2,000 sign ups for our event, a bit too ambitious I have to admit. After being reasoned with, our group settled in at a goal of 200.

After about a month, I realized our department was directionless, and as the assigned scheduler, I needed to find a way to make specific, time-bound goals that were clear and achievable for everyone involved and could be measured. So, taking from my experience in our Audience module, I decided that to set clear goals we needed an audience, a campaign vision, and a schedule that could execute that vision.

Event website publishinginnovation2026.myblog.arts.ac.uk
Eventbrite eventbrite.co.uk/e/ink-paper-power-tickets-1984635080952
Instagram instagram.com/mapublishing
LinkedIn linkedin.com/in/ual-ma-publishing-19a615352

What we need	Editorial Team	1. Blurb for newsletters: briefly describing event with details of the event (1-2 sentences), you probably already have this 2. Blog posts: blog as self, short summary and caption, meaningful quote, hashtags 3. Speaker Bio: brief description of who they are/what they're talking about, short caption as well with hashtags (speak with S&EC)
	Design Team	1. Banner for LinkedIn/Reddit 2. Header for Blogposts: something that could be edited for each different title 3. Updating website
	Speaker and Event Coordination	1. Liaison with speaker: ask if they are willing to share details of the event on their platforms, ask if they are willing to give a 15 second snippet of their speech, ask if we can share their photo on social media 2. Speaker Bio: brief description of who they are/what they're talking about, short caption as well with hashtags (speak with Editors)
	Guest Experience	1. Play by Play: what will the event look like for the attendee?
	Podcast	1. Communication/Posting Location: keep us updated so we can share/promote when ready

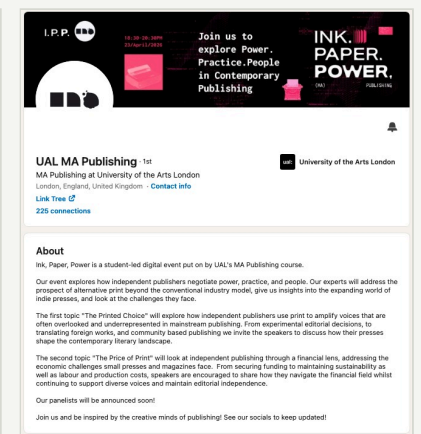

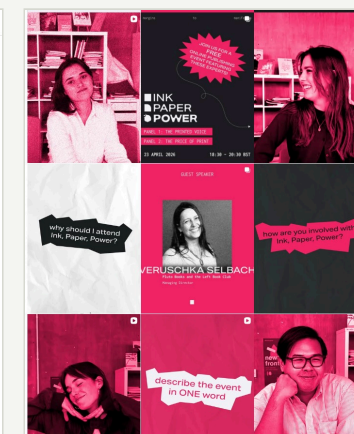

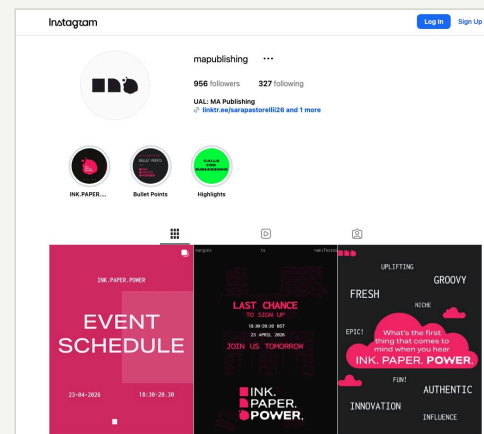

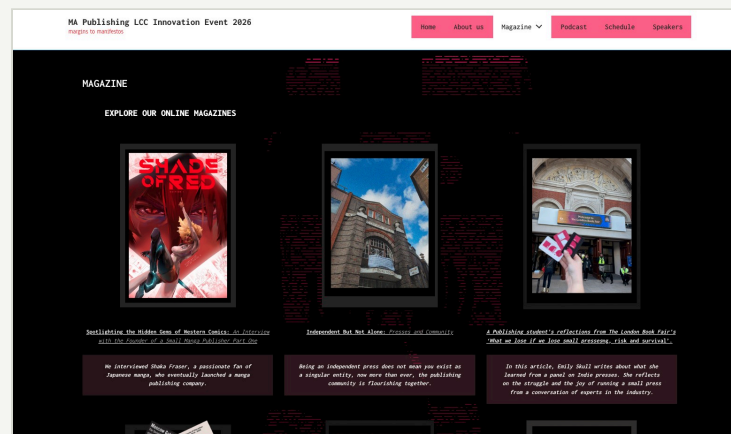

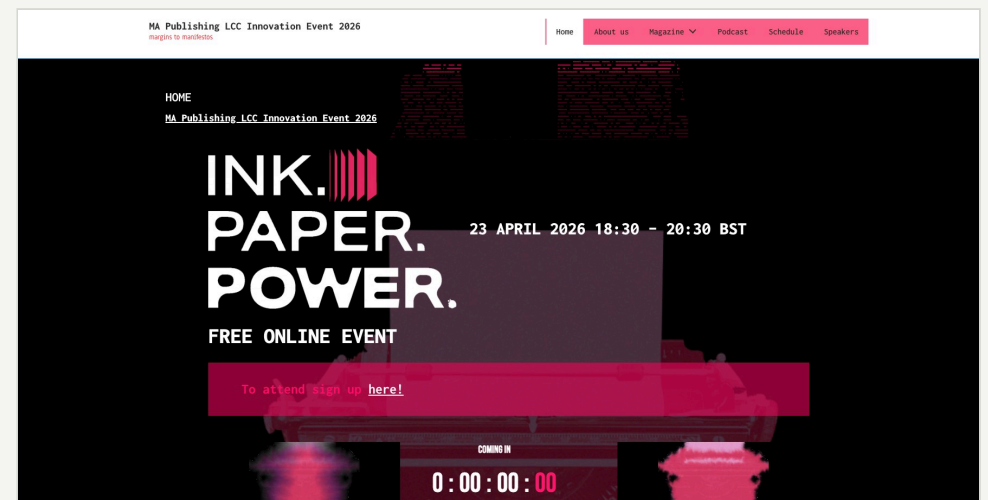

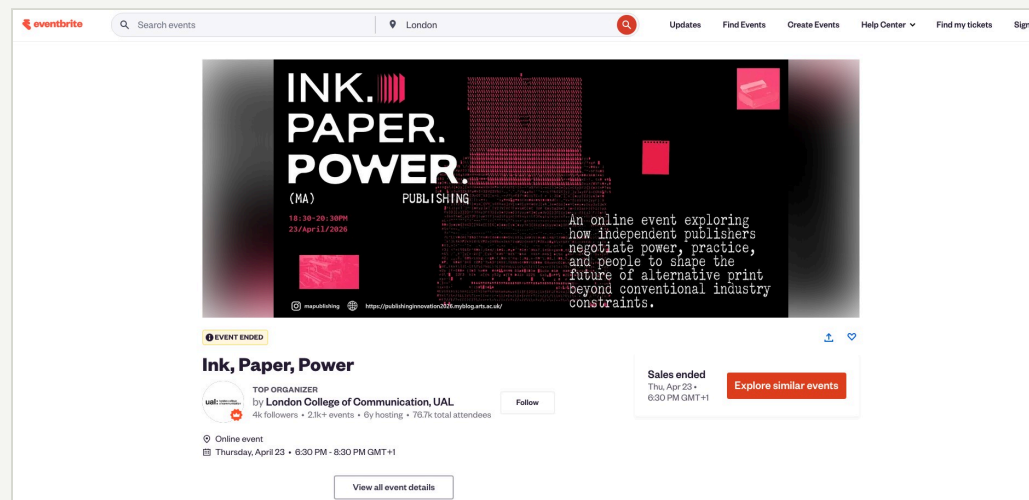

The campaign proposal I created and presented; the brief for each team, from newsletter blurbs to a 15 second speaker snippet; and the proposed timeline, from press outreach to the final week of posters.

The campaign

The campaign proposal I created was the product of my independent research, insights from collaborative brainstorming between my department and design, and suggestions from our professors. We knew we wanted the content to be human forward to garner a reputation of earnestness and integrity, and so the concept for our meet the team reels was born.

Unfortunately, we were banned from reddit within an hour and so I used my personal reddit. Lily's efforts in contacting publishing newsletters were also successful; we had a listing in BookMachine's newsletter.

After setting a schedule with specific needs allocated to specific departments, no one took charge of meeting those needs. So, I also ended up acting as a liaison between our department, design, and the editors encouraging everyone to achieve the goals I had outlined.

161

sign ups on Eventbrite against a goal of 200, more than previous groups

39,350

Instagram views and 8,527 accounts reached, 27 Feb to 22 Apr

+245.6%

LinkedIn followers on the previous year, now 197

~4,000

views on one r/publishing post

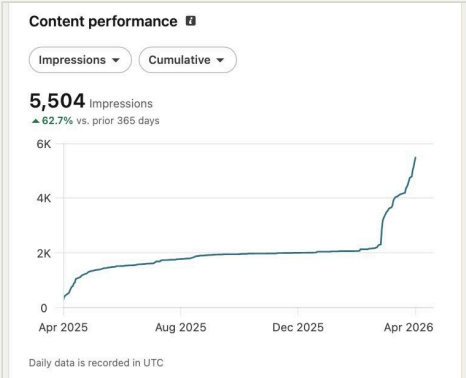

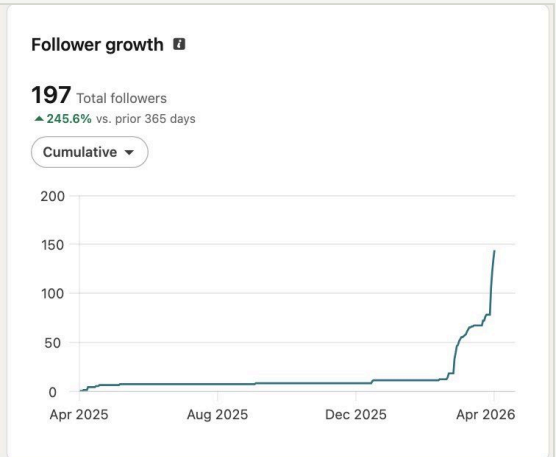

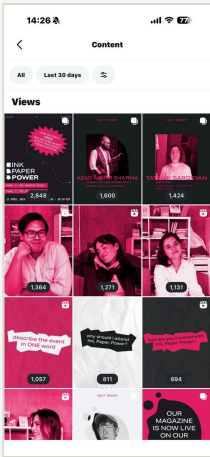

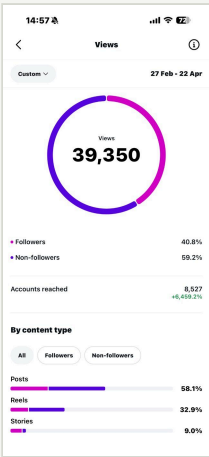

Then, at the end of our campaign, Jialing and I decided to have a look at the metrics across our social media platforms to see how our efforts had expanded our reach. Our Instagram and LinkedIn profiles both saw a major increase in followers and connections respectively.

stet KEEP IT

In hindsight, having specific, actionable goals boosted the effectiveness of our team's outreach and made the entire campaign run smoothly by making specific problems or areas needing attention clear.

insert NEXT TIME

In the future, I should advocate for myself to be project manager from the start.

Instagram views, views by post and followers; LinkedIn followers and impressions; and the r/publishing post.

CAMPAIGN PROPOSAL • MA COURSEWORK • JANUARY 2026

The Elementals: Find Your Element

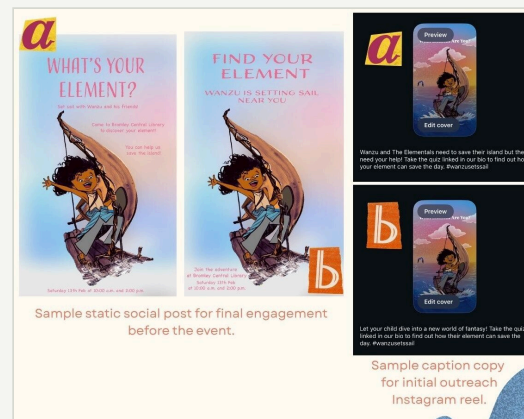

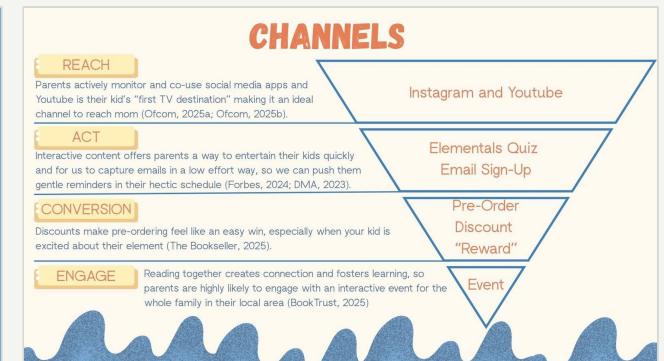

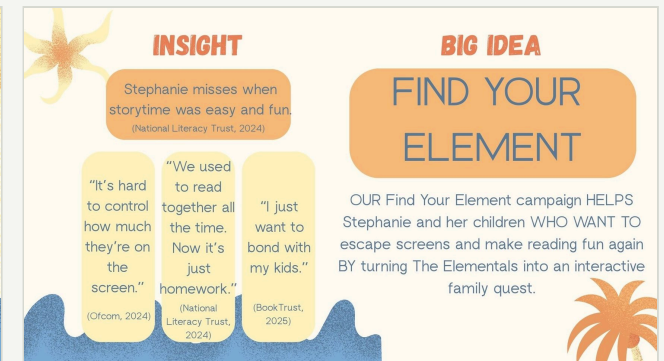

Launch campaign for Love Ssega's debut children's book, Wanzu Sets Sail. Audience: parents of children aged 5 to 7.

Our goal is to give parents and kids 5-7 a wondrous experience. What better way than a family event and a new world of fantasy?

First we capture Stephanie's attention on Instagram and YouTube through Reels and Shorts. A link in the caption leads her to our interactive Element Quiz, leading her to share her email to receive "Quest Reward Code", and learn about our in-person event. Emailed newsletters and more posts on library or bookshop social channels will gently remind her by breaking through the mental chaos of parenting subtly.

Using quest language makes the whole experience more exciting calling them to Find their Element, Save the Island, and Join the adventure.

A proposal for my MA, not a live campaign.

Campaign goal; insight and big idea; activities from reach to engage; channels; A/B sample content; messaging and sample copy. The Elementals: Wanzu Sets Sail by Love Ssega, illustrated by Erika Meza.

PROJECT MANAGER • ART BOOK

Embodied

Embodied is a hardcover, clothbound art book on how sculpture has represented the female figure, made by an MA Publishing group at the University of the Arts London. As project manager, I was in charge of scheduling and of communication between the editing, design and binding roles, and I kept contributor records and consent forms.

I found sending out cold emails to a variety of individuals and institutions beneficial in raising my confidence when speaking professionally within the field of publishing.

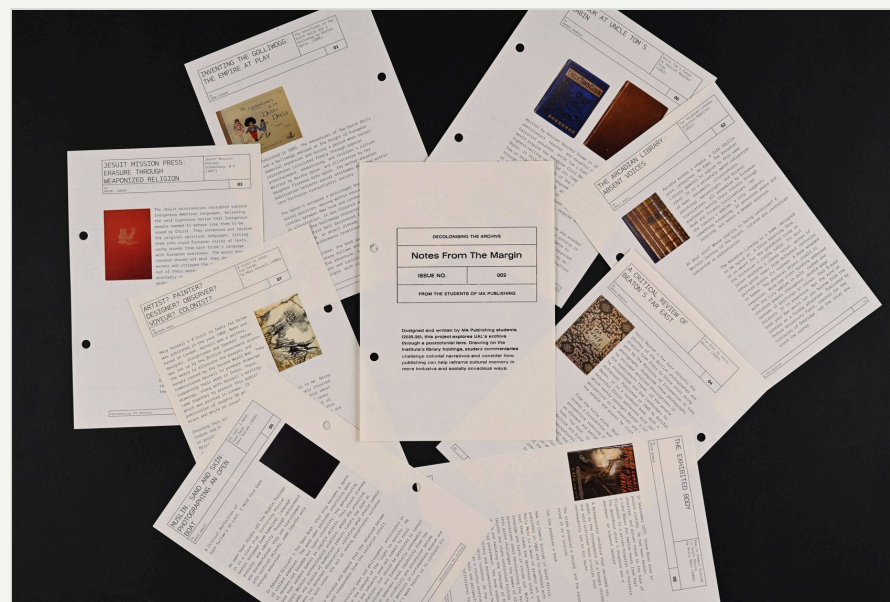

Initial print run of six editions in rust and blue cloth.

PROJECT MANAGER AND CONTRIBUTING AUTHOR • ZINE

Decolonising the Archive

A ring-bound zine designed and written by MA Publishing students (2025-26), exploring UAL's archive through a postcolonial lens. I was project manager, creating the project timeline and coordinating communication between group members, and I wrote one of the student commentaries, on the Jesuit Mission Press.

I elected to be project manager of this project so that I could establish clear roles and tasks rather than letting it all fall onto me.

Notes From The Margin, Issue 002.

DESIGNER • MA CONTENT UNIT

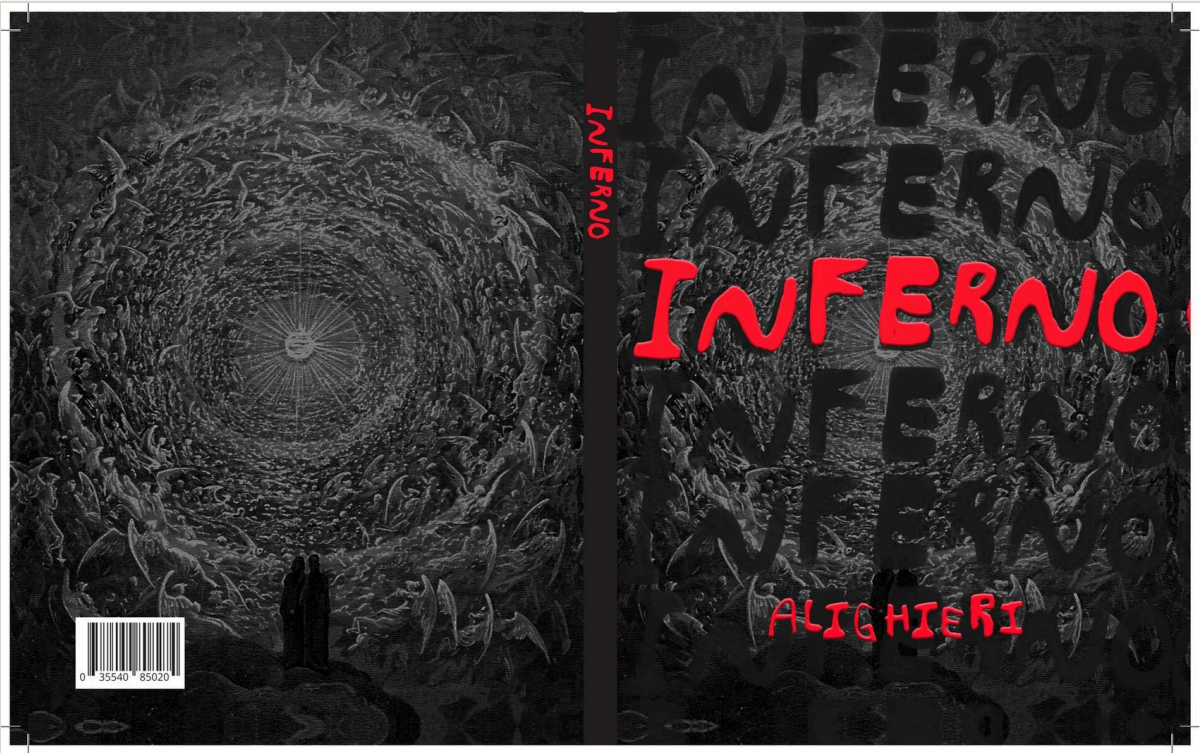

Inferno: two prototypes

Prototype 1, Inferno Anatomy, is a collectible deck of cards for tourists and museum goers who want a unique aesthetic memento of the Inferno. Prototype 2 is a new modern dual translation for college age collectors who enjoy poetry and want an eye-catching book that's easy to carry around and use for class.

My undergraduate study of Dante's Inferno at Louisiana State University was the inspiration for this MA project.

My ideas were clear as day to me as we first began the project, but unfortunately my vision was way outside of my design capabilities. Successfully learning how to manipulate images into my envisioned end product on Photoshop gave me confidence and a drive to move forward.

CARD DECK	11.1 × 15.5 cm, 27 cards front and back, GF Smith White Frost 350gsm, tied with red velvet string
BOOK	150 × 188mm, 208 pages, perfect bound and section stitched, Munken Print White 20, 90gsm

Cover design for the dual translation, and Inferno Anatomy: the cover card, then the backs and faces of Lust and Greed.

Research, proposals and networking

Graduate research paper · UAL · December 2025

The Webtoon: a master of IP jumping from platforms into multiple media formats

Platform metrics from fan participation produce verified content and limit producers' risk when deciding acquisitions. In the future, publishing may rely on digital sources for IP because of the vast opportunities platforms provide, but may face challenges with algorithms controlling visibility and limiting diversity.

Book proposal · Usborne

Creating Without Plastic

An educational craft focused companion activity book. The book will condense tested and researched information into language accessible to kids, so they can build healthy habits for taking care of earth early!

Audience report · UAL · November 2025

Consumers know what's best for the Poetry Foundation

Poetry deserves a platform with global reach, and by developing a consumer insight department, we can uncover gaps in our engagement and develop new strategies to connect with a broader and more diverse readership.

Innovation proposal · UAL · April 2026

Entomology in Sport

Imagine Mary M. Ward's cheerfully whimsical book Entomology in Sport brought to life as an educational digital reimagination. A Read-to-Me book with a subtly animated, gently narrated video book as a companion, for Ladybird on the Epic! platform.

Graduate research review · UAL · October 2025

Can Bookstagrammers make a book more recognizable?

A review of a study on a Romanian Bookstagram tour. Their research explores how the world of publishing overlaps with the business side of digital marketing. Though the research is limited to a smaller sample, the concept and execution convincingly demonstrate the rising role social media marketing has in the publishing industry.

London Book Fair · dissertation on Libraro

How a coffee line changed my dissertation

Funnily enough the man I was speaking to is CEO of a company called Libraro that encodes IP using blockchain technology. He bought me a diet coke and we ended up speaking for thirty minutes or so about his company and my research.

WORKING WITH AI

I have experience using AI tools in content creation and workflow support. While planning Ink, Paper, Power I used ChatGPT for research on publishing newsletters. I am aware Chat may potentially give unreliable statistics about publishing newsletter monthly traffic, but decided to go ahead and use it as a general baseline.

Let's talk

rachelthinks.github.io

racheljordancw@gmail.com

linkedin.com/in/rachel-jordan-b923b5100